

From the Revelations of Saint Gertrude

The saint ardently desiring to make some return to her Beloved for all His sufferings, said to Him: "O my only Hope, and Salvation of my soul! Teach me how to make some return to Thee for Thy most bitter Passion."

Our Lord replied: "He who follows the will of another, and not his own, frees Me from the captivity which I endured when bound with chains on the morning of My Passion;

He who considers himself guilty, satisfies for my condemnation, at the hour of Prime, by false witnesses;

He who renounces the pleasures of sense, consoles Me for the blows which I received at the hour of Terse;

He who submits to pastors who try him, consoles Me for the crowning with thorns;

He who humbles himself first in a dispute, carries My cross;

He who performs works of charity, consoles Me at the hour of Sext, when My limbs were cruelly fastened to the cross;

He who spares himself neither pain nor labour to withdraw his neighbour from sin, consoles Me for My Death, which I endured at the hour of None for the salvation of the human race;

He who prefers his neighbour to himself, lay Me in the sepulchre."
